

United States District Court
Western District of Texas
El Paso Division

Edwin J. Zuniga Mendoza,
Petitioner,

v.

Mary de Anda-Ybarra, et al.,
Respondents.

No. 3:26-CV-00061-LS

Federal Respondents' Response to Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus

Federal¹ Respondents provide this response to Petitioner's habeas petition. Any allegations that are not specifically admitted herein are denied. Petitioner is not entitled to the relief he seeks, and this Court should deny this habeas petition without the need for an evidentiary hearing.

Petitioner is an 'arriving alien' who is ineligible (and was ineligible even pre-Hurtado), for bond from an immigration judge. ECF No. 1-5 at 2; 8 C.F.R. 1003.19(h)(2)(i); see also Goguev v. Noem, et al, SA-25-CA-01593-XR (W.D. Tex. Jan. 13, 2026) (Rodriguez, J.) (denying habeas petition to an arriving alien). Arriving aliens are applicants for admission, and Fifth Circuit precedent now confirms that an applicant for admission is subject to mandatory detention. Buenrostro v. Bondi, No. 25-20496, ---- F.4th ---- 2026 WL 323330, at *1 (5th Cir. Feb. 6, 2026). The Buenrostro decision is binding precedent and requires that the Court deny this habeas

I. Relevant Facts and Procedural History

Petitioner applied for admission at a port of entry on or about August 11, 2018.³ ECF No. 1-5 at 2. Petitioner was most recently detained on September 19, 2025, following his confinement in Travis County Correctional Complex for driving while intoxicated. See Exh. A (I-213). On January 20, 2026, an immigration judge denied Petitioner's applications for relief and ordered him removed to Honduras. See Exh. B (IJ Order). Petitioner has until March 16, 2026, to file an appeal with the Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA). Id. at 4.

II. Argument

A. Petitioner Is an Arriving Alien Subject to Mandatory Detention under § 1225(b) As an Applicant for Admission.

On the merits, this petition differs from those frequently filed before the Court because this Petitioner is an arriving alien who presented himself to immigration authorities at a port of entry. See Exh. A (NTA). The term "arriving alien" means an applicant for admission coming or attempting to come into the United States at a port-of-entry" 8 C.F.R. § 1001.1(q). Arriving aliens are inspected immediately upon arrival in the United States and, unless "clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted," are placed in "removal proceedings to determine admissibility."

² The Buenrostro decision is a published decision and precedential authority even though the mandate has yet to issue. See, e.g., Martin v. Singletary, 965 F.2d 944, 945 n.1 (11th Cir. 1992) (explaining that even a stay in the issuance of a mandate does not impact the precedential value of published opinions); Acute Care Ambul. Serv., L.L.C. v. Azar II, No. 7:20-CV-00217, 2020 WL 7640206, at *13 (S.D. Tex. Dec. 3, 2020) (rejecting the argument that a Fifth Circuit decision is not controlling because "the mandate has yet to issue, and thus not properly relied upon as precedent."). As such, each adverse pre-Buenrostro district court decision in this district should be deemed unpersuasive as it relates to ICE's statutory authority to detain certain aliens on a mandatory basis under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b).

³ This is a material factual difference between this petition and the others frequently filed before the court, as Petitioner here presented himself at a port of entry, as opposed to entering without inspection between ports of entry. ECF No. No. 1-5 at 2.

Clark v. Martinez, 543 U.S. 371, 373 (2005) (quoting 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A)).

Since Petitioner applied for admission at the port of entry, he is an arriving alien. 8 C.F.R. § 1001.1(q). Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), arriving aliens are to be detained unless released by ICE on a discretionary parole. 8 C.F.R. § 1235.3(c); Clark, 543 U.S. at 373 (explaining that detention of an “alien arriving in the United States” is “subject to the Secretary’s discretionary authority to parole” her into the United States); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)(A). Whether the government decides to parole an arriving alien or keep him detained, the regulations state that an immigration judge does not have authority to review the custody determination of an arriving alien in removal proceedings. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.19(h)(2)(i)(B). This regulation pre-dates Matter of Yajure-Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025) and is well-settled law. See, e.g., Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 287 (2018); see also Garibay-Robledo v. Noem, --- F.Supp.3d ---, No. 1:25-CV-177-H, 2026 WL 81679 at *4 (N.D. Tex. Jan. 9, 2026).

Petitioner, therefore, is properly detained under § 1225(b)(2)(A) as an arriving alien in removal proceedings⁴ under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. See Matter of E-R-M- & L-R-M-, 25 I & N Dec. 520, 521, 523 (BIA 2011); 8 C.F.R. § 239.1 (DHS has the discretion to issue an NTA at the port of entry in lieu of expedited removal proceedings). As an arriving alien, irrespective of the Board’s decision in Hurtado, the regulations bar Petitioner from seeking bond from an immigration judge. See also Buenrostro, 2026 WL 323330 at *1.

⁴ Although the immigration judge ordered removal in this case, Petitioner reserving appeal of that decision renders the decision non-final. See Exh. B at 4. Even if Petitioner were entitled to a discretionary danger to the community/flight risk analysis, where an immigration judge has denied all substantive relief from removal, the scale tips heavily against discretionary release on bond, as it calls into question the alien’s likelihood of compliance with any removal order once it becomes final. See, e.g., Johnson v. Guzman Chavez, 594 U.S. 523, 544 (2021) (finding that aliens “who have not been ordered removed are less likely to abscond” but those who have been ordered removed pose a higher flight risk).

B. On Its Face, and As Applied to Petitioner, § 1225(b)(2)(A) Comports with Due Process.

Section 1225 does not provide for a bond hearing. The Supreme Court upheld the facial constitutionality of § 1225(b) in Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. 103, 139 (2020). Aliens who arrive at ports of entry—even those paroled elsewhere in the country for years pending removal—are “treated” for due process purposes “as if stopped at the border.” Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. at 139. Mandatory detention of an applicant for admission during “full” removal proceedings does not violate due process, because constitutional protections are built into those proceedings. See 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. See Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510, 526 (2003) (recognizing the constitutionality of detention during the limited period of removal proceedings).

In Demore, the Supreme Court distinguished the Zadvydas v. Davis analysis and its 8 U.S.C. § 1231 post-order framework because petitioners in Demore were still pending removal proceedings. Id. at 527-528 (finding the potentially indefinite detention of a post-final-order case where petitioner cannot be removed from the United States materially distinguishable from continued detention tied to pending removal proceedings). The petitioner in Demore filed a habeas petition after being in immigration custody for approximately six months while removal proceedings were pending. Id. at 530. The District Court granted the petition, and the Ninth Circuit affirmed, finding that continued detention, “as applied” to him, violated substantive due process. Id. at 509. Reversing, the Supreme Court concluded that since removal proceedings were ongoing, detention was “a constitutionally permissible part” of the removal process. Id. at 530.

Consistent with the Supreme Court’s long-standing precedent, the Fifth Circuit in Buenrostro found that Zadvydas v. Davis did not apply to detained aliens who received or were receiving due process through removal proceedings. Buenrostro, at *9. Buenrostro also dismissed claims of abuse of detention finding that those concerns were “wholly speculative” Id. While an as-applied constitutional challenge, such as a prolonged detention claim, may be brought before the district court in certain circumstances, Petitioner here raises no such claim where he has been detained for only a brief period pending removal proceedings.

For aliens, like Petitioner, who are detained during removal proceedings as applicants for admission, what Congress provided to them by statute satisfies due process. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. at 140. Indeed, Petitioner reserved appeal of the immigration judge’s removal order, exercising his due process right to seek judicial review. Such a decision necessarily prolongs the removal proceedings, but not unconstitutionally. As applied here to Petitioner, detention does not violate due process.

C. Any Stay of Removal Should Be Lifted

If the Court in this case entered an order staying removal, that order should be vacated. The Fifth Circuit recently reiterated in an unpublished decision that district courts lack jurisdiction to enter stays of removal. Imran v. Harper, No. 25-30370, 2026 WL 93131 (5th Cir. 2026).

III. Conclusion

Petitioner is lawfully detained as an arriving alien in removal proceedings. The Fifth Circuit has held that applicants for admission are properly detained on a mandatory basis under § 1225(b)(2). Buenrostro, 2026 WL 323330 at *1. Petitioner is receiving the process he is owed during removal proceedings, and his continued detention during that process is not unconstitutional. The Court should deny the Petition in its entirety.
