

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
EL PASO DIVISION

DANIEL ANTONIO VILLAR AGUILAR, PETITIONER,

V.

NO. 3:26-CV-00088-KC

MARY DE ANDA-YBARRA, ET AL.,

RESPONDENTS.

FEDERAL¹ RESPONDENTS' RESPONSE TO PETITIONER'S PETITION WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

¹ The named warden in this action is not a federal employee. The Department of Justice does not represent him in this action. The Federal Respondents, however, have detention authority over aliens detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a).

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

1. Whether mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) is unconstitutional as applied to petitioner.
2. Whether the writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 provides any relief other than release.

Federal Respondents timely submit this response per this Court's Order dated January 20, 2026, directing service and ordering a response. See ECF No. 2. In his petition for writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241, Petitioner seeks release from civil immigration detention, claiming that his continued detention is contrary to statute, regulation, and the Due Process Clause. See ECF No. 1. Petitioner's claims lack merit, and this petition should be denied.

Petitioner bases his claims of unlawful detention on Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025). However, Petitioner has a final order of removal from May 27, 2014. See Ex. A, Removal Order (redacted). Consequently, his detention is mandated under 8 U.S.C. § 1231, and not the Hurtado arguments. Detention can be extended past the removal period in the exercise of discretion where removal is reasonably foreseeable. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6). ICE may decide in its discretion to continue detention past the 90-day removal period, which is a decision protected from judicial review. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B).

Petitioner has not shown here that there is no likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future. For these reasons, the Court should deny this habeas petition.

I. Facts and Procedural History

Petitioner is a native and citizen of Cuba. ECF No. 1 at ¶ 42. Petitioner alleges he entered the country in 2004. Id. at ¶ 43. Petitioner was convicted of the offense of arson in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. See Exh. B, I-213 (redacted). On May 27, 2014, he was ordered removed to Cuba. See Exh. A, Order of Removal (redacted). Petitioner waived his appeal. See id. Petitioner concedes that he was detained on July 17, 2025, by ICE. ECF No. 1 at ¶ 43; Exh. B, I-213 (redacted). Upon Petitioner's detention in July 2025, his order of supervision was revoked, and he was administratively arrested. See id.

II. Detention Is Lawful Under 8 U.S.C. §1231(a)(6).

The authority to detain aliens after the entry of a final order of removal is set forth in 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a). That statute affords ICE a 90-day mandatory detention period within which to remove the alien from the United States following the entry of the final order. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(2). The 90-day removal period begins on the latest of three dates: the date (1) the order becomes “administratively final,” (2) a court issues a final order in a stay of removal, or (3) the alien is released from non-immigration custody. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(1)(B).

Not all removals can be accomplished in 90 days, and certain aliens may be detained beyond the 90-day removal period. See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 701 (2001). Under § 1231, the removal period can be extended in at least three circumstances. See Glushchenko v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 566 F.Supp.3d 693, 703 (W.D. Tex. 2021). Extension is warranted, for example, if the alien presents a flight risk or other risk to the community. Id.; see also 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(1)(C); (a)(6). An alien may be held in confinement until there is “no significant likelihood of removal in a reasonably foreseeable future.” Zadvydas, at 533 U.S. at 680.

III. There Is No Good Reason to Believe That Removal to Cuba Is Not Significantly Likely in the Reasonably Foreseeable Future.

Petitioner cannot show “good reason” to believe that removal to Cuba is unlikely. In Zadvydas, the U.S. Supreme Court held that § 1231(a)(6) “read in light of the Constitution’s demands, limits an alien’s post-removal-period detention to a period reasonably necessary to bring about that alien’s removal from the United States” but “does not permit indefinite detention.” 533 U.S. at 689. “[O]nce removal is no longer reasonably foreseeable, continued detention is no longer authorized by the statute.” Id. at 699. The Court designated six months as a presumptively reasonable period of post-order detention but made clear that the presumption “does not mean that every alien not removed must be released after six months.” Id. at 701.

Once the alien establishes that he has been in post-order custody for more than six months at the time the habeas petition is filed, the alien must provide a “good reason” to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future. See Andrade v. Gonzales, 459 F.3d 538, 543–44 (5th Cir. 2006); Gonzalez v. Gills, No. 20–60547, 2022 WL 1056099 at *1 (5th Cir. Apr. 8, 2022). Unless the alien establishes the requisite “good reason,” the burden will not shift to the government to prove otherwise. Id.

The “reasonably foreseeable future” is not a static concept; it is fluid and country-specific, depending in large part on country conditions and diplomatic relations. Ali v. Johnson, No. 3:21–CV–00050-M, 2021 WL 4897659 at *3 (N.D. Tex. Sept. 24, 2021). Additionally, a lack of visible progress in the removal process does not satisfy the petitioner’s burden of showing that there is no significant likelihood of removal. Id. at *2 (collecting cases); see also Idowu v. Ridge, No. 3:03–CV–1293-R, 2003 WL 21805198, at *4 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 4, 2003). Conclusory allegations are also insufficient to meet the alien’s burden of proof. Nagib v. Gonzales, No. 3:06–CV–0294-G, 2006 WL 1499682, at *3 (N.D. Tex. May 31, 2006) (citing Gonzalez v. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, No. 1:03–CV–178-C, 2004 WL 839654 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 20, 2004)). One court explained:

To carry his burden, [the] petitioner must present something beyond speculation and conjecture. To shift the burden to the government, [the] petitioner must demonstrate that “the circumstances of his status” or the existence of “particular individual barriers to his repatriation” to his country of origin are such that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future.

Idowu, 2003 WL 21805198, at *4 (citation omitted).

There is no dispute that Petitioner’s removal order has been final since Petitioner waived appeal. Petitioner, nonetheless, argues that his continued detention pending removal is contrary to statute and in violation of his due process rights. ECF No. 1 at ¶¶ 46–66. Petitioner, however, relies on only conclusory allegations and speculation to argue that he is subject to continued detention Id.

Petitioner's conclusory and speculative claims are wholly insufficient to meet his burden of proof under Zadvydas. See Nogales v. Dept. of Homeland Sec., No. 21-10236, 2022 WL 851738 at *1 (5th Cir. Mar. 22, 2022) (citing Rice v. Gonzalez, 985 F.3d 1069, 1070 (5th Cir. 2021)); Akbar v. Barr, SA-20-CV-01132-FB, 2021 WL 1345530 (W.D. Tex. Mar. 5, 2021); see also Andrade, 459 F.3d at 543–44; Boroky v. Holder, No. 3:14-CV-2040-L-BK, 2014 WL 6809180, at *3 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 3, 2014). As such, Petitioner cannot meet his burden to show that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future. See Thanh v. Johnson, No. EP-15-CV-403-PRM, 2016 WL 5171779, at *4 (W.D. Tex. Mar. 11, 2016) (denying habeas relief where government travel documents). The burden of proof, therefore, does not shift to Federal Respondents to prove that removal is likely.

IV. Conclusion

There is no good reason to believe that removal to Cuba in the reasonably foreseeable future is unlikely. Continued detention under 1231(a)(6), therefore, is lawful. Accordingly, the Court should deny this petition.
