

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF GEORGIA
COLUMBUS DIVISION

D.F.M.L.	)
	)
Petitioner,	)
	)	CASE NO.:
vs.	)	4:26-cv-629
	)
JASON STREEVAL, in his official capacity as	)
Warden of Stewart Detention center; and	)
LADEON FRANCIS, Field Office Director for ICE	)
Atlanta Field Office, and	)
TODD LYONS, in his official capacity as Acting	)
Director of Immigration and Customs Enforcement;	)
MARKWAYNE MULLIN, Secretary of	)
Homeland Security; and	)
TODD BLANCHE, Acting U.S. Attorney General.	)
	)
Respondents.	)
_____	)

VERIFIED PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AND COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

I. INTRODUCTION

1. This Petition challenges the ongoing and unlawful detention of Petitioner, D.F.M.L. (Petitioner), A#  by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) at the Stewart Detention Center, Lumpkin, Georgia. This detention, unlawful from its inception, began with a warrantless arrest that lacked statutory authority and is perpetuated by Respondents' misapplication of mandatory detention statutes meant only for noncitizens arriving at the border. Petitioner is neither a flight risk nor a danger to the community. See Exhibit 1 (ICE Locator). This case fits within this Court's Standing Order No. 2026-01 regarding the treatment of immigration detainees entitled to relief under J.A.M. v. Streeval and P.R.S. v. Streeval available at the following Court website link: <https://www.gamd.uscourts.gov/sites/gamd/files/general-ordes/2241StandingOrder.pdf>

2. Petitioner is requesting leave to proceed under his initials as a pseudonym in order to protect his identity as part of asylum protections as he is an asylum applicant who fears harm and retaliation and merits heightened privacy protections under U.S. asylum laws.
3. Petitioner's detention is unlawful under every conceivable statutory theory, trapping Respondents in a legal "Catch-22" of their own making. The detention is void ab initio because it began with an illegal warrantless arrest and is now perpetuated under a statute that has no application to Petitioner. The Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) provides only two potential authorities for a civil immigration arrest in the interior of the country, and Respondents satisfied neither.
4. The Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA") establishes two distinct detention frameworks. Section 1225 governs inspection and mandatory detention of noncitizens "arriving" at the border or otherwise "seeking admission," while 8 U.S.C. § 1226 governs arrest and discretionary detention of noncitizens apprehended "in the United States" on a warrant, with the possibility of release on bond or recognizance. Petitioner – who entered on or about April 2019, was not encountered by DHS upon entry, and then lived and worked in the interior under ICE supervision – falls squarely within § 1226, not § 1225.

5. Petitioner’s detention is unlawful on two independent grounds. First, ICE’s warrantless interior arrest violated the statutory arrest framework. Section 1226(a) requires an arrest “on a warrant,” and the narrow warrantless arrest exception in 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) applies only where an officer has reason to believe the person is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained. Section 1225(b) cannot be used to retrofit that interior seizure into a border style “arriving alien” detention. The arrest and ensuing custody are therefore void ab initio.
6. Most federal courts around the country have rejected the government’s attempt to detain long settled, interior apprehended noncitizens under § 1225(b) on the theory that they remain perpetual “applicants for admission,” and have held that such individuals are detained – and bond eligible – under § 1226(a). Petitioner’s continued custody under § 1225(b) thus contravenes the INA’s text and structure, the governing regulations, and the APA/ Accardi doctrine requiring agencies to follow their own rules. See Exhibit 2 hundreds of such decisions. See Exhibit 2, all rejecting Respondents’ position. See also the landmark cases from this Court rejecting the government’s position and agreeing with Petitioner’s that is entitled to a bond hearing: J.A.M. v. Streeval,

No. 4:25-cv-342 (CDL), 2025 WL 3050094 (M.D. Ga., Nov. 1, 2025) and P.R.S. v. Streeval, No. 4:25-cv-330, 2025 WL 3269947 (M.D. Ga., Nov. 24, 2025). Since habeas relief is individualized and cannot be brought as a class action, each case has to be litigated separately.

7. Petitioner seeks (1) a writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 ordering his immediate and unconditional release because his arrest and detention are unlawful ab initio; and (2) in the alternative, a declaratory judgment that his detention is governed by 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and an order requiring a prompt bond hearing before an Immigration Judge at which the government bears the burden to justify continued detention by clear and convincing evidence of danger or flight risk. Petitioner also seeks narrowly tailored injunctive relief to prevent re-detention under § 1225(b) or the vacated July 2025/Yajure framework absent changed circumstances and full compliance with governing statutes, regulations, and due-process requirements.

II. JURISDICTION

A. This Court Has Jurisdiction Under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 and § 1331

8. This Court has jurisdiction under several legal provisions, including 28 U.S.C. § 2241, which grants federal courts the authority to issue writs of habeas corpus, and 28 U.S.C. § 1331, which provides for federal question jurisdiction. Jurisdiction over habeas claims is conferred by 28 U.S.C. § 2241, while non-habeas claims for declaratory and injunctive relief arise under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, the APA, and the Declaratory Judgment Act.

9. Additionally, jurisdiction is supported by Article I, § 9, cl. 2 of the Constitution, known as the Suspension Clause, and Article III, Section 2, which addresses the Court's authority to hear constitutional issues raised by the Petitioner. The Petitioner seeks immediate judicial intervention to address ongoing violations of constitutional rights by the Respondents. This action is grounded in the United States Constitution, the Immigration & Nationality Act of 1952, as amended (INA), 8 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq., and the APA, 5 U.S.C. § 551 et seq. Furthermore, the Court may also exercise jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, as the action arises under federal law, and may grant relief pursuant to the Declaratory Judgment Act, 28 U.S.C. § 2201 et seq., and the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651.
10. The Court has authority to issue a declaratory judgment and to grant temporary, preliminary and permanent injunctive relief pursuant to Rules 57 and 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP), as well as 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201-2202. Additionally, the Court can utilize the All Writs Act and its inherent equitable powers to provide such relief. Furthermore, the Court has the authority to issue a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241.
11. This Court possesses federal question jurisdiction under the APA to "hold unlawful and set aside agency action" deemed "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law," as outlined in 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). In the absence of a specific statutory review process, APA review of final agency actions can proceed through “any applicable form of legal action,” which includes actions for declaratory judgments, writs of prohibitory or mandatory injunction, or habeas corpus, in a court of competent jurisdiction, as specified in 5 U.S.C. § 703.

12. In I.N.S. v. St. Cyr, the Supreme Court held that federal courts retain habeas corpus jurisdiction under 28 USC § 2241, despite restrictions on judicial review enacted under the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRIRA) and the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA). 533 U.S. 289 (2001). Consequently, section 2241 habeas review remains available to Petitioner.
13. The U.S. Supreme Court has recognized district courts’ jurisdiction to entertain habeas petitions raising colorable constitutional claims—including those alleging deprivation of liberty without due process, arbitrary or indefinite detention, and agency action contrary to law. Even though the government may detain individuals during removal proceedings, Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510 (2003), (although that case involved detention under §1226(c) of certain criminal aliens) there are limitations to this power of the executive branch. Limitations like the Due Process Clause restrict the Government’s power to detain noncitizens. It is well settled that individuals in deportation proceedings are entitled to due process of law under the Fifth Amendment. Reno v. Flores, 507 U.S. 292, 306, (1993). Courts must review immigration procedures and ensure that they comport with the Constitution.

14. Federal courts have retained the statutory authority to grant writs of habeas corpus since enactment of the Judiciary Act of 1789. In Felker v. Turpin, 518 U.S. 651 (1996), the Supreme Court declined to find a repeal of § 2241 by implication as to its original habeas corpus jurisdiction. See also Boumediene v. Bush, 553 U.S. 723 (2008). In addition to the Supreme Court in many cases, all Circuit Courts of Appeals have recognized district courts' jurisdiction to entertain habeas petitions raising colorable constitutional claims—including those alleging deprivation of liberty without due process, arbitrary or indefinite detention, and agency action contrary to law.
15. In this case, Petitioner asserts substantial constitutional violations—including deprivation of liberty without due process, arbitrary and capricious agency action, violations of the Accardi doctrine, and other injuries without notice or opportunity to be heard. These claims fall squarely within the scope of habeas review preserved by statute and recognized by controlling precedent. Accordingly, this Court has both the authority and the obligation to adjudicate the constitutional and statutory claims presented in this Petition and to grant appropriate relief to remedy ongoing violations of Petitioner's rights.

B. The INA's Jurisdictional-Channeling Provisions Are Inapplicable

16. Petitioner's claims challenge only the Petitioner's civil immigration detention and the procedures used to prolong it—not the merits of removability or any final order of removal—and therefore fall outside 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b)(9)'s channeling provision. See Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 291-292 (2018)

(detention challenges are not “questions of law or fact arising from” removal proceedings). Consistent with that framing, any injunctive relief sought here is strictly as-applied to Petitioner—for example, directing Petitioner’s release under § 1226(a) or barring application of § 1225 as to Petitioner—and does not “enjoin or restrain the operation” of any statute within § 1252(f)(1)’s bar. In any event, § 1252(f)(1) permits individualized, as-applied relief for a single noncitizen, even while prohibiting class-wide injunctions. See Garland v. Aleman Gonzalez, 596 U.S. 543, 548–49 (2022).

17. Section 1252(f)(1) does not bar the individualized injunctive relief sought here. That provision limits lower courts’ authority to “enjoin or restrain the operation” of the INA’s detention and removal provisions on a class-wide or programmatic basis but expressly preserves injunctive relief “with respect to the application of such provisions to an individual alien against whom proceedings under such part have been initiated.” 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1); Garland v. Aleman Gonzalez, 596 U.S. 543, 548–50 (2022). Petitioner seeks only as applied relief tailored to Petitioner—e.g., directing Petitioner’s release under § 1226(a) or precluding DHS from enforcing the “arriving alien” definition of § 1225 toward Petitioner. That relief neither halts the general operation of any INA provision nor provides class-wide relief and thus falls squarely within § 1252(f)(1)’s carveout.
18. Section 1252(g) is likewise inapplicable. It is a “narrow” jurisdictional bar that applies only to three discrete decisions or actions: “to commence proceedings, adjudicate cases, or execute removal orders.” Reno v. Am.-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 482 (1999). Petitioner does not challenge any such decision. Petitioner challenges ongoing civil detention and DHS’s use of an unlawful interpretation to nullify the plain language of the INA and its regulations as applicable to these agencies. Such detention related claims and challenges to custody procedures fall outside § 1252(g). See id. at 482–83; cf. Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 381–32 (2018) (§ 1252(b)(9) does not channel detention claims).

19. Section 1252(e)(3) is likewise inapplicable as it is narrowly tailored to channel systemic or facial challenges to the validity of the expedited removal “system” or its implementing regulations and written policies to the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, and only within 60 days of implementation. It does not bar as-applied, individualized habeas challenges to the legality or constitutionality of a particular noncitizen’s detention under § 1225(b)(2) or whether § 1225 governs Petitioner’s detention or § 1226. The text of § 1252(e)(3) is explicit: it covers “[c]hallenges on the validity of the system” and review of “whether such a regulation, or a written policy directive, written policy guideline, or written procedure ... is not consistent with applicable provisions of this title or is otherwise in violation of law.” It does not preclude review of the legality of detention as applied to a specific individual, nor does it bar habeas review of constitutional claims or claims that the government is misapplying the statute in a particular case.

20. To prevent ouster of this Court's habeas jurisdiction, the Court should, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a) (All Writs Act) and 28 U.S.C. § 2241, issue an immediate limited order prohibiting Respondents from transferring Petitioner outside the court's District or otherwise changing Petitioner's immediate custodian without prior leave of Court while this action is pending. Such relief is necessary in aid of jurisdiction because habeas is governed by the district-of-confinement/immediate-custodian rule, and transfer can frustrate effective review. See Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426, 441–42 (2004); Ex parte Endo, 323 U.S. 283, 307 (1944); FTC v. Dean Foods Co., 384 U.S. 597, 603–05 (1966).

III. VENUE

21. Venue is proper in the United States District Court for the Middle District of Georgia because Petitioner is currently detained at the Stewart Detention Center, Lumpkin, Georgia, under the custody of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Respondent Jason Streeval, as the Warden of Stewart Detention Center, is the Petitioner's immediate custodian and Respondents exercise authority over Petitioner's custody in this jurisdiction, as supported by Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426, 443 (2004). Habeas petitions generally are filed in the district court with jurisdiction over the filer's place of custody, also known as the district of confinement, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241. Additionally, with respect to Petitioner's non-habeas claims seeking prospective declaratory and injunctive relief against federal officials (agencies and officers of the United States) sued in their official capacities, venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1)(B) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to these claims, including the initial arrest and continued detention of Petitioner and the enforcement of the mandatory detention agency interpretation, occurred in this District. Furthermore, the Respondents are officers of United States agencies, the Petitioner is detained within this District, and there is no real property involved in this action.

IV. PARTIES

22. Petitioner, D.F.M.L, is a 20-year-old noncitizen who has resided in the United States since his initial admission as an unaccompanied minor (UAC), as he was deemed by the Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR) on April 19, 2019. He is currently detained at the Stewart Detention Center in Lumpkin, Georgia.
23. Respondent Jason Streeval is the Jailer/Warden of Stewart Detention Center, Lumpkin, Georgia. As such, Respondent Jason Streeval is responsible for the operation of the Detention Center where Petitioner is detained and is the immediate custodian who is currently holding Petitioner in physical custody. Because ICE contracts with private and county-operated detention facilities to house immigration detainees, Respondent Jason Streeval has immediate physical custody of the Petitioner and is sued in his official capacity.

24. Respondent Ladeon Francis is the Field Office Director for the ICE Atlanta Field Office. As such, Respondent Francis is responsible for the oversight of ICE operations at the Stewart Detention Center. Respondent Francis is being sued in his official capacity. He is the head of the ICE office that unlawfully arrested Petitioner, and such arrest took place under his direction and supervision. He is the immediate legal custodian of Petitioner.
25. Respondent Todd Lyons is the Acting Director of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). As such, Respondent Lyons is responsible for the oversight of ICE operations and the head of the federal agency responsible for all immigration enforcement in the United States. Respondent Lyons is being sued in his official capacity.
26. Respondent Markwayne Mullin is the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). As Secretary of DHS, Secretary Mullin is the cabinet-level official responsible for the general administration and enforcement of the immigration laws of the United States. Respondent Secretary Mullin is being sued in his official capacity.
27. Respondent Todd Blanche is the Acting Attorney General of the United States and is sued in his official capacity since U.S. government agencies are Respondents in this complaint. Furthermore, the Immigration Judges who decide removal cases and applications for bond and relief from removal do so as his designees at the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR).

28. Petitioner names certain federal officials in their official capacities solely to preserve alternative, non-habeas avenues for prospective relief – such as as-applied declaratory and injunctive orders under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, the APA’s waiver of sovereign immunity, 5 U.S.C. § 702, the Declaratory Judgment Act, 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201–2202, and the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651 – necessary to enjoin enforcement of DHS regulations and their interpretation as applied to Petitioner, ensure compliance with DHS/EOIR custody regulations, prevent transfer or removal of Petitioner, and effectuate any release the Court orders at the agency level where policy and implementation authority reside. See, e.g., Larson v. Domestic & Foreign Commerce Corp., 337 U.S. 682 (1949); Dugan v. Rank, 372 U.S. 609 (1963).
29. Petitioner acknowledges, consistent with Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426 (2004), that the proper respondent to the habeas claim is the immediate custodian, and does not rely on the federal officials as “habeas respondents.” Rather, Petitioner names these federal officials in their official capacities solely to ensure that the Court can issue effective relief on non-habeas claims, such as declaratory and injunctive relief, and to direct agency action to those with actual authority to implement it. Should the Court find these officials improper as respondents to the habeas count, Petitioner respectfully requests that any dismissal be limited to that claim and without prejudice to their continued status as respondents for the non-habeas claims. Maintaining these officials as parties is necessary to ensure that, if relief is granted, the responsible agency officials cannot simply re-arrest Petitioner or otherwise frustrate the Court's order by invoking their erroneous interpretation of the INA. This approach is consistent with Padilla and ensures that the Court's orders are both effective and enforceable.

V. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

30. Petitioner, D.F.M.L, is a 20-year-old noncitizen who has resided continuously in the United States since his arrival to the United States on or about April 19, 2019, when he entered as an unaccompanied minor (UAC) as deemed by the Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR) with authorization from CBP. Upon information and belief, he was released by an OREC (Order on Release of Recognizance) into the country after DHS deemed him not a flight risk or danger to the community. However, Petitioner does not have this paperwork in detention and it could not currently be independently verified by his attorney. However, Petitioner reserves the right to amend his Complaint later.
31. Petitioner has no criminal history, except for driving without a license. Petitioner was previously placed in removal proceeding but Atlanta Immigration Judge Joseph Imburgia Dismissed Petitioner's immigration proceedings on May 31, 2023. He currently has a pending asylum and withholding of removal (I-589) application pending with USCIS. Additionally, Petitioner recently suffered a hand injury while in detention. He poses no danger to the community and presents no risk of flight, as demonstrated by his long-term residence in the United States, prior immigration officials' determination and judgment to release him on his own recognizance, given his steady employment and affirmatively filing for asylum based on a fear of return to his country of origin.

32. On February 20, 2026, Petitioner was arrested in McDuffie County, Georgia, after being stopped for a speeding violation. He was taken into local police custody and was initially held in McDuffie County. After paying a bond, ICE took a hold of him and he was subsequently transferred to the Stewart Detention Center in Lumpkin, Georgia, where he remains detained. Petitioner's continued detention, despite the absence of any criminal history beyond minor traffic violations or any individualized determination that confinement is necessary, has caused significant hardship and is not justified by any legitimate governmental interest.
33. Upon information and belief, Petitioner was again placed in removal proceedings by Respondents. Petitioner's Hearing is scheduled for April 29, 2026.
34. Petitioner was arrested in the interior of the United States nearly seven years after entry and is therefore improperly detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), ICE having not issued a warrant for his arrest. Had they issued a warrant, his arrest under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), which provides for discretionary bond or release on recognizance, may have been proper. Nevertheless, Respondents have classified him as an "arriving alien" and detained him under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)—rendering his ineligible for bond under their new, unlawful policy.

35. Because all Respondents continue to treat Petitioner as detained under § 1225(b), any request for bond redetermination before an Immigration Judge would be futile, as the Immigration Court has already disclaimed jurisdiction over such requests. Accordingly, habeas relief is the only available and effective remedy to secure Petitioner's release or a lawful custody hearing.
36. Petitioner is neither a danger to the community nor a flight risk. He has resided continuously in the same community for nearly seven years, has a United States Citizen sister, has established community ties, and works in construction. Less-restrictive alternatives remain available and adequate, such as release on recognizance or posting a low bond.
37. Prolonged detention under these circumstances imposes unnecessary hardship on Petitioner and his family, depriving his financial, emotional support and caregiver responsibilities, violating Petitioner's right to due process and freedom from arbitrary detention.
38. As of the time of filing of this Writ of Habeas, Petitioner remains confined to the Stewart Detention Center, Lumpkin, Georgia, solely because of ICE's invocation of its new interpretation that Petitioner is an "arriving alien" or "applicant for admission" and is therefore subject to mandatory detention. Even if Petitioner were to file for a bond redetermination with the immigration judge, they would deny it pursuant to Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I. & N. Dec.

216. All Respondents consider that Petitioner is detained pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2). Accordingly, it would be futile for Petitioner to request a bond for release from an Immigration Judge. Due to the binding nature of Matter of Yajure Hurtado, all immigration courts known to counsel are denying bond requests for similarly situated noncitizens, making habeas the only effective remedy. Similarly, even in cases an Immigration Judge would grant bond, ICE would appeal it which would leave Petitioner incarcerated through the appeal, which would take months and end up dismissed based on Yajure Hurtado.

VI. EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES

39. No statutory exhaustion requirement applies to habeas cases, and the recent interpretations by DHS and EOIR have effectively closed all administrative avenues for securing release for noncitizens, like Petitioner, who entered the U.S. without inspection. ICE's internal policy from July 2025, coupled with the EOIR's Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA) precedent, mandates that immigration judges deny bond to the Petitioner and similarly situated noncitizens, rendering any further administrative steps futile. An administrative remedy may be inadequate where the administrative body is shown to be biased or has otherwise predetermined the issue before it as noted in Gibson v. Berryhill, 411 U. S. 564, 575, n. 14 (1973). Requiring Petitioner to seek reconsideration with ICE or a bond hearing with an immigration judge

“would be to demand a futile act” as no relief would be granted while Petitioner languishes in detention, as highlighted in Houghton v. Shafer, 392 U.S. 639, 640 (1968). Moreover, even if any remedies were available, the habeas statute does not require Petitioner to exhaust them.

40. Furthermore, even if applied, the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies would have been futile on claim attacking constitutionality of ICE’s actions and ICE’s and EOIR’s current interpretations of the mandatory detention provisions. Administrative hearings cannot address the constitutional claims at issue, rendering further proceedings ineffective. Moreover, where ICE seeks to quickly remove noncitizens like Petitioner even to third countries, without due process, particularly under the current administration’s policies, underscores the inadequacy of administrative remedies. McCarthy v. Madigan, 503 U.S. 140, 146–49 (1992) (futility exception to exhaustion applies where administrative remedies are inadequate or unavailable). Thus, pursuing such remedies would be an exercise in futility, as they fail to provide any meaningful opportunity to address the constitutional violations at hand.
41. Petitioner has exhausted all administrative remedies to the extent required by law, and Petitioner’s only remedy is by way of this judicial action.

VII. PETITIONER'S ARREST AND DETENTION ARE UNLAWFUL AB INITIO

42. Petitioner's detention is unlawful from its very inception because Petitioner's arrest by ICE violated the clear and restrictive statutory framework established by Congress. The Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) provides only two potential authorities for a civil immigration arrest in the interior of the United States. The primary authority, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), explicitly requires that an arrest be conducted "[o]n a warrant issued by the Attorney General". The statute provides a narrow exception to this rule in 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2), which permits a warrantless arrest only where an officer has reason to believe the individual is unlawfully present and is "likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained." Respondents satisfied neither of these statutory requirements, rendering the seizure of Petitioner a legal nullity from the outset.
43. The warrantless seizure of Petitioner was statutorily invalid because Respondents could not possibly meet the exigency requirement of 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2). The "likely to escape" determination is a mandatory prerequisite, not mere surplusage. See United States v. Pacheco-Alvarez, 227 F. Supp. 3d 863, 878 (S.D. Ohio 2016). Here, it was a factual impossibility for Petitioner to pose a risk of escape, as Petitioner was already secured in the custody of local law enforcement when ICE officers took custody over Petitioner. As courts have recognized, the government cannot justify a warrantless arrest under this exception without an “individualized assessment” of flight risk, and the argument that any person in local custody is inherently likely to escape upon release has been rejected. Since the exception for a warrantless arrest is inapplicable, Respondents’ only remaining authority was 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), which required a warrant that Respondents did not possess. Having failed under both statutory provisions, the arrest was void ab initio.

44. An arrest conducted without statutory authority is an unreasonable seizure under the Fourth Amendment. The constitutional violation here may be compounded if the initial stop was predicated on impermissible racial profiling rather than specific, articulable facts suggesting unlawful activity. The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that “Mexican appearance” alone is insufficient to justify an immigration stop. United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 U.S. 873, 886–87 (1975). The Court recently reaffirmed this principle in Noem v. Vasquez Perdomo, --- S.Ct. ---, 2025 WL 2585637, at *3 (2025), and clarified in Trump v. Illinois, No. 25A443, 607 U.S. ____ (2025) (footnote 4, pages 6-7), that the prohibition on racial profiling remains fully intact. Therefore, to the extent the initial law enforcement contact that led to Petitioner’s transfer to ICE custody was based on nothing more than their appearance, it would represent a distinct violation of the Fourth Amendment. The court affirmed the long-standing prohibition on racial profiling under the Fourth Amendment remains fully intact, and an officer’s subjective belief that an individual “looks Hispanic” is, by itself, insufficient to establish the reasonable suspicion required for a lawful stop or arrest.

45. Because the arrest was fundamentally unlawful, the only constitutionally sufficient remedy is immediate and unconditional release. A subsequent administrative bond hearing is wholly inadequate, as it cannot cure the initial violation of Petitioner's liberty. The government's continued custody of Petitioner is the direct "fruit of the poisonous tree" – the poisonous tree being the illegal arrest itself. See Wong Sun v. United States, 371 U.S. 471, 484–88 (1963); Silverthorne Lumber Co. v. United States, 251 U.S. 385, 392 (1920). Allowing subsequent proceedings, like a bond hearing, to continue would improperly legitimize a detention that never had a lawful basis. Ordering such a hearing would treat the detention as if it were lawfully initiated under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), rewarding Respondents for bypassing the statute's explicit warrant requirement. As other courts have concluded, where detention is based on an unlawful arrest and derivative evidence is suppressed, the appropriate remedy is immediate release. See Rosado v. Figueroa, No. CV-25-02157-PHX DLR, 2025 WL 2337099, at *19 (D. Ariz. Aug. 11, 2025). Law and justice require restoring the liberty that was unlawfully taken.
46. Petitioner's detention is thus unlawful under any statutory theory Respondents could possibly advance. Petitioner's detention was initiated under 8 U.S.C. § 1225, a statute this Court has repeatedly found inapplicable to interior apprehensions in dozens of cases involving similarly situated petitioners. Yet, even if Respondents had attempted to detain their under the correct statute for interior apprehensions, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), the arrest would still be void because they failed to obtain the prerequisite warrant that the statute unequivocally requires. These are not mere procedural missteps; an arrest conducted without any statutory authority is an unreasonable seizure that violates the Fourth Amendment. Because the initial seizure and subsequent detention are unlawful ab initio under either statutory scheme, the only appropriate and constitutionally sufficient remedy is the one that restores the liberty that was illegally taken: immediate and unconditional release. A bond hearing under § 1226(a) is an inadequate remedy because it presupposes a lawful arrest under that statute—a condition that does not exist here.

VIII. LEGAL AND STATUTORY FRAMEWORK

A. Noncitizens Are Entitled to Due Process

47. It is a bedrock principle of constitutional law that the Fifth Amendment's Due Process Clause protects all "persons" within the United States from deprivation of liberty without due process, a protection that extends to all noncitizens, regardless of whether their presence is "lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent." Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 693 (2001); see also Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 32 (1982); Mathews v. Diaz, 426 U.S. 67, 77 (1976); Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369 (1886).

B. This Court's Holding in J.A.M. v. Streeval: Interior Apprehensions Are

Governed by § 1226(a)

48. This Court has already rejected the government's attempt to subject long-term residents apprehended in the interior to the mandatory detention provisions of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2). In J.A.M. v. Streeval, No. 4:25-cv-342 (CDL), 2025 WL 3050094 (M.D. Ga. Nov. 1, 2025), a case with nearly identical facts, this Court harmonized the INA's distinct detention schemes. It held that § 1225, which applies to aliens "seeking admission," does not cover individuals already present in the U.S., as "seeking admission" requires an active attempt to enter, not mere presence. Id. The court therefore concluded that noncitizens apprehended in the interior, like Petitioner, are properly detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and are entitled to a bond hearing. As Petitioner's circumstances are legally indistinguishable from those in J.A.M., the same statutory analysis compels the same conclusion.

C. Recent Federal Court Cases Rejecting DHS' and EOIR's New Interpretation

49. This Court's holding in J.A.M. aligns with a tidal wave of recent decisions from hundreds of district courts that have repudiated the government's novel reinterpretation of the INA (See Ex. 2). These courts consistently find that applying the "arriving alien" framework of § 1225 to interior apprehensions defies the statute's plain language.¹ As one court memorably explained, a person who sneaks into a movie theater is described as being “already present there,” not as “seeking admission.” Lopez Benitez v. Francis, --- F.Supp.3d at ---, 2025 WL 2371588, at *7. The government’s position would also render § 1226(a) – the statute governing discretionary bond for interior arrests – a near nullity, a result Congress could not have intended. Id. at *8. While these cases confirm the illegality of Petitioner’s detention, habeas relief is individualized, necessitating this petition to vindicate Petitioner’s rights.

¹ Savane v. Francis, 2025 WL 2774452 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 28, 2025) (Petitioner arrested pursuant to 1225 which was improper; habeas petition granted and immediate release ordered within one business day); Artiga v. Genalo, 2025 WL 2829434 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 5, 2025) (Petitioner unlawfully detained pursuant to 1225, government ordered to transport Petitioner back to EDNY within 24 hours and immediately upon effectuating his transfer, to release him from custody); Cuevas

Guzman v. Andrews, 2025 WL 2617256 (E.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2025), (petitioner entered without inspection more than 30 years ago, detained pursuant to 1225, court found 1226(a) applied based on statutory language; PI granted and court ordered release); Echevarria v. Bondi, 2025 WL 2821282 (D. Ariz. Oct. 3, 2025), entered without inspection in 2001, arrested in 2025 under 1225(b); the 24 year period petitioner resided in the U.S. made the plain language of 1225(b) was inapplicable to him, at the time of arrest an immigration officer was not “examining” him and he was not “seeking” admission; Based on Jennings and Nielsen, statutory scheme of 1226(a) applies); Maldonado Vazquez v. Feeley, 2025 WL 2676082 (D. Nev. Sept. 17, 2025) (entered without inspection over 20 years ago; detained July 2025; court help petitioner held pursuant to 1226(a) not as the government contends 1225(b)(2); Yajure Hurtado renders requiring prudential exhaustion futile; PI granted and release ordered on IJ bond); Rodriguez Vazquez v. Bostock, 2025 WL 2782499 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 30, 2025) (court granted summary judgment on behalf of a class of people without lawful status held in Tacoma who entered without inspection and not apprehended upon arrival, court held plain text of 1226(a) applies rather than 1225(b) and issues a detailed statutory analysis); Guzman Alfaro v. Wamsley, 2025 WL 2822113 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 2, 2025) (court granted similar relief as a class member of Rodriguez Vasquez; Garcia Cortes v. Noem, 2025 WL 2652880 (D. Colo. Sept. 16, 2025) (Court held 1226(a) and not 1225(b)(2) authorizes detention; procedural due process violated under Mathews, habeas granted); Lopez-Campos v. Raycroft, No. 2:25-cv-12486, 2025 WL 2496379, at *5-6 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 29, 2025) (granting petition for writ of habeas corpus ordering immediate release or bond hearing, where, for 30 years, courts have applied section 1226(a) to noncitizens like the petitioner who was already in the United States but facing removal, rejecting the government’s argument that section 1225 applied so no bond hearing was required.

IX. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE RELIEF SOUGHT

A. Habeas Jurisdiction

50. This Court has fundamental authority and a constitutional duty under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 to remedy Petitioner’s unlawful detention. The Supreme Court has consistently affirmed that the Great Writ is the primary instrument for challenging the legality of civil immigration detention. See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 687 (2001); I.N.S. v. St. Cyr, 533 U.S. 289, 314 (2001); Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 285–86 (2018). As “perhaps the most important writ known to the constitutional law,” habeas corpus is an equitable tool that empowers this Court not just to review custody, but to “dispose of the matter as law and justice require” under 28 U.S.C. § 2243. Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391, 400 (1963); Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 298, 319 (1995). That power explicitly includes ordering a petitioner’s immediate release. Boumediene v. Bush, 553 U.S. 723, 787 (2008). This Court’s jurisdiction is secure, as the concept of “custody” is broad, attaching at the time of filing and persisting despite subsequent release due to the significant ongoing restraints on Petitioner’s liberty. See Hensley v. Municipal Court, 411 U.S. 345, 351 (1973).

B. The Administrative Procedure Act (APA)

51. Petitioner’s detention is predicated on two agency actions—ICE’s July 2025 “Interim Guidance” and the BIA’s decision in Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025)—that are subject to this Court’s review. These policies represent the “consummation of the agency’s decisionmaking process” and are the direct cause of Petitioner's unlawful confinement, qualifying them as reviewable "final agency action" under the APA. See Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. 154, 178 (1997); 5 U.S.C. § 704.

C. The Accardi Doctrine Requires Agencies to Follow Internal Rules

52. Respondents' actions also violate the bedrock principle of administrative law that agencies are bound by their own rules. United States ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260, 268 (1954). This doctrine is not limited to formal regulations but extends to internal procedures and instructions that affect individual rights. See Morton v. Ruiz, 415 U.S. 199, 235 (1974); Montilla v. INS, 926 F.2d 162, 167 (2d Cir. 1991). By abandoning their long-standing regulations and practices that have historically afforded bond hearings for interior apprehensions, Respondents have acted unlawfully, and their actions must be set aside. See U.S. v. Heffner, 420 F.2d 809, 812 (4th Cir. 1969).

X. CAUSES OF ACTION AND CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

COUNT ONE

Unlawful Arrest in Violation of the Fourth Amendment and the INA
(8 U.S.C. §§ 1226(a), 1357(a)(2))

53. Petitioner's seizure and detention are unlawful ab initio because Petitioner's arrest violated the clear statutory framework established by Congress and the Fourth Amendment's prohibition on unreasonable seizures. The primary authority for a civil immigration arrest in the interior of the United States requires that it be conducted "[o]n a warrant." 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). The narrow exception for a warrantless arrest under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) demands a showing that the individual is “likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained”.

54. Respondents failed to meet either requirement. It was a factual impossibility for Petitioner to be “likely to escape” in that situation as described in the facts and procedural history above. Having failed to satisfy the statute’s mandatory exigency requirement, Respondents’ only lawful path to arrest Petitioner was to obtain a warrant under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), which they have failed to do.
55. An arrest conducted without any statutory authority is an unreasonable seizure in violation of the Fourth Amendment. Because the initial seizure was void, the government’s custody over Petitioner’s person is the direct “fruit of the poisonous tree” and is incurably tainted. A subsequent bond hearing cannot remedy a detention that never had a lawful beginning. The only proper remedy for this fundamental statutory and constitutional violation is immediate and unconditional release.

COUNT TWO
Statutory Violation of the Immigration and Nationality Act, Agency Regulations And the Accardi Doctrine

56. Petitioner’s detention is the direct result of a cascade of unlawful agency actions that violate the plain text of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), contravene decades of binding agency regulations, and therefore constitute a flagrant violation of the Accardi doctrine. Respondents are unlawfully detaining Petitioner by misclassifying Petitioner as an “arriving alien” subject to mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) when the statutes and the agency’s own rules unambiguously require their case to be processed under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), which provides for discretionary release on bond.

57. First, Respondents’ actions defy the clear statutory scheme established by Congress. The INA creates two distinct detention frameworks: § 1225 governs the inspection and mandatory detention of aliens “arriving in the United States,” while § 1226(a) governs the discretionary detention of aliens arrested “in the United States” on a warrant. Petitioner, a long-term resident apprehended in the interior, falls squarely within the latter category. By applying the “arriving alien” framework to Petitioner, Respondents unlawfully erase this critical statutory distinction.

58. Second, Respondents’ actions violate their own binding regulations and long-standing practice. For over two decades, agency regulations have implemented the statutory distinction by explicitly providing for bond eligibility for interior apprehensions. After Congress amended the INA in 1996, the agency issued an interim rule clarifying that noncitizens “present without having been admitted or paroled (formerly referred to as [noncitizens] who entered without inspection) will be eligible for bond and bond redetermination” under 8 U.S.C. § 1226. This policy is enshrined in regulations such as 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1 and 1236.1. The new policy articulated in the July 2025 ICE memorandum and the Yajure Hurtado decision represents a radical and unlawful departure from these established rules. Both have now been VACATED under the APA.

59. Finally, by defying their own statutes and regulations, Respondents have violated the Accardi doctrine, a bedrock principle of administrative law that commands that federal agencies are bound by their own rules. See United States ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260 (1954). The Accardi doctrine applies with full force not only to formal regulations but also to internal policies and guidance that confer “important procedural benefits upon individuals,” such as the right to a bond hearing. Am. Farm Lines v. Black Ball Freight Serv., 397 U.S. 521, 538 (1970); see also Montilla v. INS, 926 F.2d 162, 167 (2d Cir. 1991).
60. In 1997, after Congress amended the INA through IIRIRA, EOIR and the then-Immigration and Naturalization Service (now DHS) issued an interim rule to interpret and apply IIRIRA. Specifically, under the heading of “Apprehension, Custody, and Detention of [Noncitizens],” the agencies explained that “[d]espite being applicants for admission, [noncitizens] who are present without having been admitted or paroled (formerly referred to as [noncitizens] who entered without inspection) will be eligible for bond and bond redetermination.” 62 Fed. Reg. at 10323 (emphasis added). The agencies thus made clear that individuals who had entered without inspection were eligible for consideration for bond and bond hearings before IJs under 8 U.S.C. § 1226 and its implementing regulations.

61. In addition to the 1997 interim rule, the current detention regulations themselves codify that noncitizens detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) are eligible for bond and IJ redetermination. Under 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8), a DHS officer may release a § 1226(a) detainee if satisfied that the person is not a danger and is likely to appear, and any adverse custody determination is expressly reviewable in a bond hearing before an Immigration Judge pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(d)(1) and the parallel EOIR regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 1236.1(d). Courts applying these provisions have recognized that they “detail the procedures for appealing the officer’s decision to an immigration judge or the Board of Immigration Appeals” for non-criminal noncitizens detained under § 1226(a), and that such detainees “have the right to request a bond hearing to seek release pending final removal proceedings” before an IJ under § 236.1(d)(1). Sopo v. U.S. Attorney Gen., 825 F.3d 1199, 1217–18 (11th Cir. 2016); Hernandez-Lara v. Immigration & Customs Enft., 560 F. Supp. 3d 531, 537–38 (D.N.H. 2019); D.Y.E.H. v. Warden, Irwin Det. Ctr., No. 7:25-CV-201 (WLS), slip op. at 8–9 (M.D. Ga. Apr. 6, 2026). These binding regulations—unchanged since the post-IIRIRA rulemaking—presuppose that noncitizens apprehended and detained in the interior under § 1226(a) are bond-eligible and entitled to IJ custody review. The July 2025 ICE Interim Guidance and Matter of Yajure Hurtado’s reclassification of such individuals as § 1225(b) “arriving aliens” ineligible for bond thus do not merely reflect a new policy preference; they effectively nullify 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1 and 1236.1 without rulemaking and in direct violation of the Accardi doctrine.

62. This is not a mere procedural error; it is a fundamental breach of the rule of law. Respondents cannot simply ignore decades of their binding procedures to achieve a policy goal of mass mandatory detention. Because Respondents' actions were taken in direct contravention of the INA and their own established rules, those actions are invalid, rendering Petitioner's resulting detention unlawful and requiring this Court to set it aside.

COUNT THREE
Violation of the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution
Procedural and Substantive Due Process

63. Petitioner's detention is a profound offense to the Fifth Amendment, violating their rights to both substantive and procedural due process. It is axiomatic that the Due Process Clause applies to all persons within the United States, regardless of immigration status, and that "freedom from imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty that Clause protects." Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 690 (2001). Respondents' actions trample upon this fundamental right.
64. Substantive Due Process: The detention is substantively unconstitutional because it is arbitrary and serves no legitimate, non-punitive purpose. Civil immigration detention is permissible only to prevent flight or danger to the community. See Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 297 (2018). As established, Petitioner is neither a flight risk nor a danger. Petitioner's mandatory detention, without any individualized assessment, bears no reasonable relation to any legitimate government purpose and is therefore arbitrary deprivation of liberty, excessive, and unconstitutional.

65. Procedural Due Process: Even if a legitimate purpose for detention existed, the procedures used to effectuate it are constitutionally rotten. Due process demands a "meaningful opportunity to be heard at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner" before a neutral decision-maker. Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 333 (1976). Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 32 (1982). The current scheme—whereby Respondents unilaterally subject Petitioner to mandatory detention based on an unlawful policy—entirely lacks these fundamental safeguards and fails the three-part balancing test set forth in Mathews:

66. The Private Interest: Petitioner's liberty interest is paramount; the risk of erroneous deprivation is extreme considering that Petitioner is not subject to mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c), is not a flight risk, and does not pose a danger to the community. Being free from physical detention by one's own government "is the most elemental of liberty interests." Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, 542 U.S. 507, 529 (2004). The right to be free of detention of indefinite duration pending a bail determination, is "without question, a weighty one." Landon v. Plasencia. Petitioner is being held in jail in the same conditions as criminal inmates, unable to work and is far from family. At minimum, the government must come forward with concrete, case-specific reasons that outweigh Petitioner's substantial liberty interest in continued release.

67. The risk of erroneous deprivation of liberty is extreme. The system lacks any neutral adjudicator, as ICE is acting as both prosecutor and judge, a structural defect that creates a constitutionally intolerable risk of wrongful deprivation, as highlighted in Marcello v. Bonds, 349 U.S. 302, 305-306 (1955). Respondents are effectuating prolonged detention based on their own self-serving interpretation of the law, with no check on their power. This risk is exacerbated by the coordinated actions of both DHS and EOIR, which operate under a unified approach that effectively denies bond to noncitizens in Petitioner's situation, thereby unilaterally depriving Petitioner of liberty.
68. The Government's Interest: The government's interest in enforcing its detention policy is minimal, if not entirely illegitimate. There is no valid government interest in enforcing an interpretation of the law that is contrary to the plain text of the INA, that conflicts with its own regulations providing for bond hearings under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), and that is based on a policy (Matter of Yajure Hurtado) that has been judicially declared untenable. The government has no cognizable interest in violating the law or wasting taxpayer resources on the unnecessary detention of individuals who are neither dangerous nor flight risks.

69. All three Mathews factors weigh decisively in Petitioner's favor. The current scheme is fundamentally unfair, unconstitutional, and deprives Petitioner of liberty without the process that is, and has always been, due.

XI. REMEDY

THE ONLY CONSTITUTIONALLY SUFFICIENT REMEDY IS IMMEDIATE AND UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE

70. When a person's liberty is taken without any lawful authority, the only effective and constitutionally sufficient remedy is to restore that liberty immediately and unconditionally. A subsequent bond hearing cannot cure a detention that was void from its inception (ab initio). Federal courts possess broad equitable power under 28 U.S.C. § 2243 to "dispose of the matter as law and justice require," which includes ordering immediate release when the government's custody is illegal. See Hilton v. Braunskill, 481 U.S. 770, 775 (1987); Rosado v. Figueroa, 2025 WL 2337099, at *19 (D. Ariz. Aug. 11, 2025). Here, law and justice demand nothing less than Petitioner's release, as Petitioner's detention is a legal nullity built upon a foundation of statutory and constitutional violations.
71. Petitioner's detention is unlawful at its core because the arrest itself was executed in open defiance of the Immigration and Nationality Act's clear commands. Whether viewed as an arrest under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 or 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), the seizure was illegal. Respondents claim authority under § 1225, but that statute applies to arriving aliens at the border, not long-term interior residents like Petitioner. The correct statute for an interior apprehension, § 1226(a), unequivocally requires that an arrest be made “[o]n a warrant.” Respondents had no such warrant.

72. A bond hearing is a wholly inadequate remedy for such a fundamental violation. The purpose of a bond hearing is to assess the propriety of continued detention following a lawful arrest. It presupposes that the government’s custody was, at some point, legitimate. That is not the case here. To order a bond hearing would be to retroactively sanitize an illegal seizure and give the government a “pass for not securing a warrant.” Javier De Jesus Aguilar v. English, No. 3:25-CV-898 DRL-SJF, 2025 WL 3280219 (N.D. Ind., Nov. 25, 2025). As that court correctly reasoned when ordering immediate release under similar facts, “[t]he simple matter is this: the government has not established a lawful basis for detention... and the government must live by the rules that Congress has instituted.” Id.

73. Granting a bond hearing would not only fail to cure the violation, it would compound the harm. It would force Petitioner to languish in unlawful custody for weeks longer while awaiting a hearing, spend additional money on a bond (if one is even granted, as bonds grants are diminishing even after habeas grants) all while Respondents have failed to produce a single shred of evidence that Petitioner is a flight risk or a danger to the community. This Court should not reward the government’s disregard for the law by prolonging the very illegal detention it created. When the government's custody over a person is the "fruit of the poisonous tree" – the poisonous tree being the illegal arrest itself – the only just remedy is to sever the connection by ordering immediate and unconditional release.

74. Furthermore, should this Court nonetheless order a bond hearing as an alternative to immediate release, it is critical that the order contain specific procedural safeguards to make that remedy meaningful. There is a troubling trend of immigration judges denying bond after a habeas grant based on rote assertions of flight risk or danger, often without the government presenting any actual evidence. To counteract this and ensure Petitioner is afforded a constitutionally adequate hearing so we do not have to return to this Court, this Court should follow the sound reasoning of another court in this District and place the burden of proof squarely on the government. In J.G. v. Warden, Irwin Cty. Det. Ctr., 501 F. Supp. 3d 1331, 1341 (M.D. Ga., 2020), the court, observing that "Circuit courts considering the standard of proof in the immigration bond context have also adopted the clear and convincing standard," held that "the government must prove by clear and convincing evidence that an alien is a flight risk . . . to justify denial of bond." Several courts of appeals have reached the same conclusion. In Velasco Lopez v. Decker, 978 F.3d 842, 855–57 (2d Cir. 2020), the Second Circuit held that, once detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) becomes unduly prolonged, due process requires a new bond hearing at which the government bears the burden to justify continued detention by clear and convincing evidence. In Hernandez-Lara v. Lyons, 10 F.4th 19, 31–33 (1st Cir. 2021), the First Circuit likewise held that in § 1226(a) bond hearings the government must prove dangerousness by clear and convincing evidence and flight risk by a preponderance of the evidence. And in German Santos v. Warden Pike Cnty. Corr. Facility, 965 F.3d 203, 213–14 (3d Cir. 2020), the Third Circuit held that, once detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c) has become unreasonable, the government bears the burden to justify continued detention by clear and convincing evidence. Most recently, in D.Y.E.H. v. Warden, Irwin Det. Ctr., No. 7:25-CV-201 (WLS) (M.D. Ga. Apr. 6, 2026), this Court enforced a prior § 2241 judgment by ordering a new § 1226(a) bond hearing at which DHS must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the petitioner is a danger or flight risk, and must consider ability to pay and alternatives to detention. The Court determined that the regulations under 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1(c)(8) and 1236.1, as incorporated through Matter of Adeniji and Matter of Guerra to place the burden on the noncitizen to “merit release on bond,” cannot control the constitutional analysis because § 1226(a) itself is silent on burden allocation and, under Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, 603 U.S. 369 (2024), courts owe no deference to an agency’s interpretation when deciding whether its procedures satisfy due process. Exercising its independent judgment, the Court held that, notwithstanding those regulations, due process requires DHS to bear the burden at a § 1226(a) bond hearing and to justify continued detention by clear and convincing evidence. Therefore, to prevent a perfunctory and meaningless hearing that would only prolong Petitioner's unlawful detention, any order for a bond hearing must explicitly direct that the government bears the burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence that Petitioner's detention is necessary.

75. Finally, to ensure the remedy of release is not rendered illusory, the Court must explicitly ENJOIN Respondents from immediately substituting physical custody with another form of unlawful restraint: electronic monitoring. There is a now-common agency practice of subjecting virtually every noncitizen released from custody to GPS ankle monitoring—a blanket policy applied without the individualized assessment of flight risk required by due process. This reflects a de facto agency policy of imposing GPS monitoring, even after an immigration judge has made a finding that a bond is sufficient to mitigate flight risk. This practice allows the agency to unilaterally subvert a judicial release order by replacing one form of custody with another. To provide a truly meaningful remedy and prevent Petitioner from being forced to return to this Court to challenge these new custody-like restraints, the Court should exercise its broad equitable power under 28 U.S.C. § 2243 to “dispose of the matter as law and justice require.” Accordingly, Petitioner requests that the Court’s order specify that Petitioner’s release is unconditional and enjoin Respondents from imposing any conditions of supervision, such as electronic monitoring, unless they first demonstrate to this Court, with five days’ advance notice, that significantly changed circumstances and a new, particularized assessment of risk justify such a severe restraint on Petitioner's liberty.

XII. CONCLUSION AND PRAYER FOR RELIEF

76. The continued detention of Petitioner violates due process rights. But for intervention by this Court, Petitioner has no means of release from ICE custody. Petitioner faces ongoing and irreparable harm as a result of unlawful detention, including deprivation of liberty, loss of employment, and separation from his family. These injuries cannot be remedied by monetary damages and will continue absent immediate judicial intervention. The balance of equities and the public interest strongly favor expedited consideration and equitable relief, including immediate release or a prompt bond hearing. Without such relief, Petitioner will continue to suffer irreparable harm, and the constitutional and statutory violations at issue will persist.

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that this Court grant the following relief. Petitioner respectfully requests expedited consideration of this Petition due to the ongoing deprivation of liberty and irreparable harm:

- (1) Grant the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus and, pursuant to its authority under 28 U.S.C. § 2243, order Respondents to immediately and unconditionally release Petitioner from custody, because his detention is unlawful ab initio under both 8 U.S.C. § 1225 (misclassification as an “arriving alien”) and 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) (failure to obtain the statutorily required warrant for an interior arrest), and rests solely on agency actions that are contrary to the INA, ultra vires, arbitrary and capricious, and adopted and applied in violation of the Accardi doctrine, as set forth in the APA/Accardi claim.
- (2) In the alternative, should the Court decline to order immediate unconditional release, issue an order directing Respondents to provide Petitioner with a bond hearing before an Immigration Judge pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and its implementing regulations at 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1 and 1236.1 within forty-eight (48) hours of the Court’s order, and further specifying that at any such hearing: (a) the government bears the burden of proving that Petitioner is either a flight risk or a danger to the community; and (b) the government must satisfy that burden by clear and convincing evidence, consistent with J.G. v. Warden, Irwin Cty. Det. Ctr., 501 F. Supp. 3d 1331, 1341 (M.D. Ga. 2020), which followed circuit precedent adopting this standard in the immigration bond context (including Singh and Lopez), in order to prevent the recurring problem of perfunctory bond denials based on unsupported assertions of risk rather than actual evidence;

- (3) Enjoining Respondents, upon Petitioner's release, from subjecting Petitioner to any form of electronic monitoring, GPS ankle bracelet, ISAP enrollment, or other alternative-to-detention program that functions as a custody-like restraint, absent prior leave of this Court. Respondents shall be prohibited from imposing such conditions unless, at least five (5) days in advance, they file notice with this Court and demonstrate—based on a new, particularized assessment of significantly changed circumstances and a concrete, evidence-based showing of flight risk or danger—that such conditions are necessary, and the Court expressly authorizes them pursuant to its authority under 28 U.S.C. § 2243 to dispose of the matter as law and justice require.
- (4) Issue an Order to Show Cause directing Respondents to file a return within three (3) days, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2243, justifying in fact and law why the writ should not be granted;
- (5) ENJOIN Respondents from re-detaining Petitioner in the future under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 or the DHS policy vacated by the Maldonado Bautista court;
- (6) Award Petitioner reasonable attorney's fees and costs; and
- (7) Grant such other and further relief as this Court deems just, proper or equitable under the circumstances.

Respectfully Submitted,

This 16th day of April, 2026.

/s/ Karen Weinstock

Karen Weinstock

Attorney for Petitioner

Weinstock Immigration Lawyers, P.C.

1827 Independence Square

Atlanta, GA 30338

Phone: (770) 913-0800

Fax: (770) 913-0888

kweinstock@visa-pros.com

28 U.S.C. § 2242 VERIFICATION STATEMENT

I am submitting this verification on behalf of the Petitioner because I am the Petitioner's attorney. I have discussed with Petitioner's family members and have reviewed various documents for Petitioner. On the basis of those discussions, I hereby verify that I have reviewed the foregoing Petition and that the facts and statements made in this Petition and Complaint are true and correct to the best of my knowledge or belief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2242.

This 16th day of April, 2026.

/s/ Karen Weinstock

Karen Weinstock

Attorney for Petitioner

Weinstock Immigration Lawyers, P.C.

1827 Independence Square

Atlanta, GA 30338

Phone: (770) 913-0800

Fax: (770) 913-0888

kweinstock@visa-pros.com