Counsel for Petitioner

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Manuel Vicente Palma-Murillo,

Petitioner,

John Cantu, Field Office Director of Enforcement and Removal Operations, Phoenix Field Office, Immigration and Customs Enforcement;
Markwayne Mullin, Secretary, U.S. Department of Homeland Security;
U.S. Department of Homeland Security;
Todd Blanche, Acting U.S. Attorney General;
Executive Office for Immigration Review;
Luis J. Rosa Jr., Warden of Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex, Respondents.

File No.-26-CV-…..

PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

INTRODUCTION

1. Petitioner, Manuel Vicente Palma-Murillo, is in the physical custody of Respondents at the Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex. He now faces unlawful detention because the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the Executive Office of Immigration Review (EOIR) have concluded Petitioner is subject to mandatory detention.

2. Petitioner is charged with, inter alia, having entered the United States without admission or inspection. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i).

3. Based on this allegation in Petitioner's removal proceedings, DHS denied Petitioner release from immigration custody, consistent with a new DHS policy issued on July 8, 2025, instructing all Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) employees to consider anyone inadmissible under § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i)—i.e., those who entered the United States without admission or inspection—to be subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and therefore ineligible to be released on bond.

4. Similarly, on September 5, 2025, the Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA or Board) issued a precedent decision, binding on all immigration judges, holding that an immigration judge has no authority to consider bond requests for any person who entered the United States without admission. See Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I. & N. Dec. 216 (BIA 2025). The Board determined that such individuals are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and therefore ineligible to be released on bond.

5. Petitioner's detention on this basis violates the plain language of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) does not apply to individuals like Petitioner who previously entered and are now residing in the United States. Instead, such individuals are subject to a different statute, § 1226(a), that allows for release on conditional parole or bond. That statute expressly applies to people who, like Petitioner, are charged as inadmissible for having entered the United States without inspection.

6. Respondents' new legal interpretation is plainly contrary to the statutory framework and contrary to decades of agency practice applying § 1226(a) to people like Petitioner.

7. Furthermore, Petitioner was previously detained and released from ICE custody in 2019. Petitioner's re-detention is unlawful because his prior release from custody created a protected liberty interest in his freedom, and Respondents have not taken procedures necessary to ensure any deprivation of that protected liberty interest accords with the Constitution.

8. Accordingly, Petitioner seeks a writ of habeas corpus requiring that he be immediately released from custody.

JURISDICTION

9. Petitioner is in the physical custody of Respondents. Petitioner is detained at the Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex located in Florence, Arizona.

10. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 2241(c)(5) (habeas corpus), 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question), and Article I, section 9, clause 2 of the United States Constitution (the Suspension Clause).

11. This Court may grant relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241, the Declaratory Judgment Act, 28 U.S.C. § 2201 et seq., and the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

VENUE

12. Pursuant to Braden v. 30th Judicial Circuit Court of Kentucky, 410 U.S. 484, 493-500 (1973), venue lies in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona, the judicial district in which Petitioner currently is detained.

13. Venue is also properly in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e) because Respondents are employees, officers, and agencies of the United States, and because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims occurred in the District of Arizona.

REQUIREMENTS OF 28 U.S.C. § 2243

14. The Court must grant the petition for writ of habeas corpus or order Respondents to show cause "forthwith," unless the petitioner is not entitled to relief. 28 U.S.C. § 2243. If an order to show cause is issued, Respondents must file a return "within three days unless for good cause additional time, not exceeding twenty days, is allowed." Id.

15. Habeas corpus is "perhaps the most important writ known to the constitutional law . . . affording as it does a swift and imperative remedy in all cases of illegal restraint or confinement." Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391, 400 (1963) (emphasis added). "The application for the writ usurps the attention and displaces the calendar of the judge or justice who entertains it and receives prompt action from him within the four corners of the application." Yong v. I.N.S., 208 F.3d 1116, 1120 (9th Cir. 2000) (citation omitted).

PARTIES

16. Petitioner Manuel Vicente Palma-Murillo is a citizen of Honduras who has been in immigration detention since March 22, 2026. After re-arresting Petitioner in Tucson, Arizona, ICE did not set bond and Petitioner is unable to obtain review of his custody by an Immigration Judge.

17. Respondent John Cantu is the Director of the Phoenix Field Office of ICE's Enforcement and Removal Operations division. As such, Respondent Cantu is Petitioner's immediate custodian and is responsible for Petitioner's detention and removal. He is sued in his official capacity.

18. Respondent Markwayne Mullin is the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security. He is responsible for the implementation and enforcement of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), and oversees ICE, which is responsible for Petitioner's detention. Respondent Mullin has ultimate custodial authority over Petitioner and is sued in his official capacity.

19. Respondent Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is the federal agency responsible for implementing and enforcing the INA, including the detention and removal of noncitizens.

20. Respondent Todd Blanche is the Acting Attorney General of the United States. As such, he is responsible for the Department of Justice, of which the Executive Office for Immigration Review and the immigration court system it operates is a component agency. He is sued in his official capacity.

21. Respondent Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) is the federal agency responsible for implementing and enforcing the INA in removal proceedings, including for custody redeterminations in bond hearings.

22. Respondent Luis Rosa Jr. is employed by CoreCivic, Inc. as Warden of the Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex, where Petitioner is detained. He has immediate physical custody of Petitioner. He is sued in his official capacity.

FACTS

23. Petitioner is a citizen of Honduras who has lived in the United States for approximately six years. On August 31, 2019, Petitioner and his minor child applied for admission into the United States at the DeConcini Port of Entry in Nogales, Arizona. At this time, Petitioner did not have any travel documents to allow him to enter the United States. At this time, Petitioner and his accompanying child were detained and turned over to ICE/ERO as a family unity for further processing. See Exhibit A.

24. Petitioner was then served with a Notice to Appear. The Notice to Appear was issued on August 31, 2019, with a hearing date to be set. The Notice to Appear alleges that Petitioner applied for admission into the United States and was an intended immigrant not in possession of a valid immigrant visa, placing him in removal proceedings pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1). See Exhibit B. He was then released into the United States while removal proceedings remained pending, as he indicated that he intended to apply for asylum. See Exhibit C. The Immigration Judge ultimately ordered dismissal of these removal proceedings on July 11, 2025.

25. Petitioner remained free from immigration detention for over six years. On March 22, 2026, Petitioner and his partner were leaving an O'Reilly Auto Parts store in Tucson, Arizona when they were approached by three officers. See Exhibit D. The officers asked for identification and then took Petitioner into custody without providing an explanation.

Petitioner is now detained at the Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex, where he has remained since this date.

26. Despite no circumstances existing to warrant re-detention, Petitioner has been held in custody for removal proceedings pursuant to a new Notice to Appear that DHS filed on March 22, 2026. See Exhibit E. In this new Notice to Appear, DHS alleges the same grounds of inadmissibility as the 2019 Notice to Appear. However, DHS added additional charges of inadmissibility to this new Notice to Appear on April 13, 2026. See Exhibit F. These new charges include that Petitioner is inadmissible pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i) as an alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or paroled.

27. Petitioner has lived in the United States for over six years. He has no criminal arrests or convictions. Petitioner is neither a flight risk nor a danger to the community.

28. Following Petitioner's arrest and transfer to Central Arizona Florence Correctional Complex, ICE issued a custody determination to continue Petitioner's detention without an opportunity to post bond or be released on other conditions.

29. As a result, Petitioner remains in detention. Without relief from this court, he faces the prospect of months, or even years, in immigration custody, separated from his family and community.

LEGAL FRAMEWORK

I. Petitioner's Detention Violates the INA.

30. The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution guarantees that no person shall be deprived of liberty without due process of law. This protection extends to all persons within the United States, including noncitizens. See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 693 (2001). The Ninth Circuit has likewise confirmed that "the government's discretion to incarcerate non-citizens is always constrained by the requirements of due process." Hernandez v. Sessions, 872 F.3d 976, 981 (9th Cir. 2017); see also id. at 990 ("In the context of immigration detention, it is well-settled that 'due process requires adequate procedural protections to ensure that the government's asserted justification for physical confinement outweighs the individual's constitutionally protected interest in avoiding physical restraint.'") (quoting Singh v. Holder, 638 F.3d 1196, 1203 (9th Cir. 2011)).

31. The INA prescribes three basic forms of detention for the vast majority of noncitizens in removal proceedings.

32. First, 8 U.S.C. § 1226 authorizes the detention of noncitizens in standard removal proceedings before an IJ. See 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. Individuals in § 1226(a) detention are generally entitled to a bond hearing at the outset of their detention, see 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.19(a), 1236.1(d), while noncitizens who have been arrested, charged with, or convicted of certain crimes are subject to mandatory detention, see 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c).

33. Second, the INA provides for mandatory detention of noncitizens subject to expedited removal under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) and for other recent arrivals seeking admission referred to under § 1225(b)(2).

34. Last, the INA also provides for detention of noncitizens who have been ordered removed, including individuals in withholding-only proceedings, see 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)–(b).

35. This case concerns the detention provisions at §§ 1226(a) and 1225(b)(2).

36. The detention provisions at § 1226(a) and § 1225(b)(2) were enacted as part of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act (IIRIRA) of 1996, Pub. L. No. 104-–208, Div. C, §§ 302–03, 110 Stat. 3009-546, 3009–582 to 3009–583, 3009–585. Section 1226(a) was most recently amended in 2025 by the Laken Riley Act, Pub. L. No.119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025).

37. Following the enactment of the IIRIRA, EOIR drafted new regulations explaining that, in general, people who entered the country without inspection were not considered detained under § 1225 and that they were instead detained under § 1226(a). See Inspection and Expedited Removal of Aliens; Detention and Removal of Aliens; Conduct of Removal Proceedings; Asylum Procedures, 62 Fed. Reg. 10312, 10323 (Mar. 6, 1997).

38. Thus, in the decades that followed, most people who entered without inspection and were placed in standard removal proceedings received bond hearings, unless their criminal history rendered them ineligible pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c). That practice was consistent with many more decades of prior practice, in which noncitizens who were not deemed "arriving" were entitled to a custody hearing before an Immigration Judge or other hearing officer. See 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a) (1994); see also H.R. Rep. No. 104-469, pt. 1, at 229 (1996) (noting that § 1226(a) simply "restates" the detention authority previously found at § 1252(a)).

39. On July 8, 2025, ICE, "in coordination with" DOJ, announced a new policy that rejected well-established understanding of the statutory framework and reversed decades of practice. The new policy, entitled "Interim Guidance Regarding Detention Authority for Applicants for Admission," claims that all persons who entered the United States without inspection shall now be subject to mandatory detention provision under § 1225(b)(2)(A). The policy applies regardless of when a person is apprehended and affects those who have resided in the United States for months, years, and even decades.

40. On September 5, 2025, the BIA adopted this same position in a published decision, Matter of Yajure Hurtado. There, the Board held that all noncitizens who entered the United States without admission or parole are subject to detention under § 1225(b)(2)(A) and are ineligible for IJ bond hearings.

41. Since Respondents adopted their new policies, dozens of federal courts have rejected their new interpretation of the INA's detention authorities. Courts have likewise rejected Matter of Yajure Hurtado, which adopts the same reading of the statute as ICE.

42. Even before ICE or the BIA introduced these nationwide policies, IJs in the Tacoma, Washington, immigration court stopped providing bond hearings for persons who entered the United States without inspection and who have since resided here. There, the U.S. District Court in the Western District of Washington found that such a reading of the INA is likely unlawful and that § 1226(a), not § 1225(b), applies to noncitizens who are not apprehended upon arrival to the United States. Rodriguez Vazquez v. Bostock, 779 F. Supp. 3d 1239 (W.D. Wash. 2025).

43. In addition, numerous federal courts have rejected ICE and EOIR's interpretation of the INA's detention provisions. These courts found that § 1226(a), rather than § 1225(b)(2), governs the detention authority in cases involving noncitizens who entered without inspection. Courts that have come to this conclusion include but are not limited to: Massachusetts, Arizona, New York, Minnesota, California, and Nebraska. See: Gomes v. Hyde, No. 1:25-CV-11571-JEK (D. Mass. July 7, 2025); Rosado v. Figueroa, No. CV 25-02157 PHX DLR (CDB) (D. Ariz. Aug. 11, 2025); Lopez Benitez v. Francis, No. 25 CIV. 5937 (DEH) (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 13, 2025); Maldonado v. Olson, No. 0:25-cv-03142-SRN-SGE (D. Minn. Aug. 15, 2025); Romero v. Hyde, No. 25-11631-BEM (D. Mass. Aug. 19, 2025); Ramirez Clavijo v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-06248-BLF (N.D. Cal. Aug. 21, 2025); Palma Perez v. Berg, No. 8:25CV494 (D. Neb. Sept. 3, 2025).

44. Furthermore, the Central District of California vacated Matter of Yajure Hurtado on February 18, 2026. Lazaro Maldonado Bautista et al. v. Ernesto Sanchez Jr et al., No. 25-CV-01873-SSS-BFM (C.D. Cal. Feb. 18, 2026). This vacatur was stayed by the Ninth Circuit pending appeal on March 6, 2026. Lazaro Maldonado Bautista et al v. U.S. Department of Homeland Security et al., No. 26-1044 (9th Cir,. March 6, 2026). While Immigration Judges and the BIA may continue to argue that this vacatur does not apply outside of the Central District of California, this decision, combined with the above-mentioned District Court decisions, support the position that the government's reliance on § 1225(b)(2) is erroneous in cases involving those whose immigration status lawfully falls under § 1226(a).

45. Courts have uniformly rejected DHS's and EOIR's new interpretation because it defies the INA. As the Rodriguez Vazquez court and others have explained, the plain text of the statutory provisions demonstrates that § 1226(a), not § 1225(b), applies to people like Petitioner.

46. Section 1226(a) applies by default to all persons "pending a decision on whether the [noncitizen] is to be removed from the United States." These removal hearings are held under § 1229a, to "decid[e] the inadmissibility or deportability of a[] [noncitizen]."

47. The text of § 1226 also explicitly applies to people charged as being inadmissible, including those who entered without inspection. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1)(E). Subparagraph (E)'s reference to such people makes clear that, by default, such people are afforded a bond hearing under subsection (a). As the Rodriguez Vazquez court explained, "[w]hen Congress creates 'specific exceptions' to a statute's applicability, it 'proves' that absent those exceptions, the statute generally applies." Rodriguez Vazquez, 779 F. Supp. 3d at 1257 (citing Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs., P.A. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 559 U.S. 393, 400 (2010)); see also Gomes, 2025 WL 1869299, at *7.

48. Section 1226 therefore leaves no doubt that it applies to people who face charges of being inadmissible to the United States, including those who are present without admission or parole.

49. By contrast, § 1225(b) applies to people arriving at U.S. ports of entry or who recently entered the United States. The statute's entire framework is premised on inspections at the border of people who are "seeking admission" to the United States. 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A). Indeed, the Supreme Court has explained that this mandatory detention scheme applies "at the Nation's borders and ports of entry, where the Government must determine whether a[] [noncitizen] seeking to enter the country is admissible." Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 287 (2018).

50. Moreover, the Laken Riley Act amended 8 U.S.C. § 1225 to apply mandatory detention to certain noncitizens who entered the United States without inspection. Laken Riley Act, Pub. L. No.119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025). This amendment further demonstrates that Section 1225(b) was never intended to apply to noncitizens in the interior of the United States who are not seeking admission.

51. Accordingly, the mandatory detention provision of § 1225(b)(2)(A) does not apply to Petitioner, who had already entered and was residing in the United States for over six years at the time the second Notice to Appear was issued.

II. Petitioner's Re-detention Violates His Right to Due Process.

52. Should the court find the mandatory detention provision of § 1225(b)(2)(A) applicable in this case, Petitioner's detention additionally violates procedural due process. The Due Process Clause protects persons in the United States from being deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. U.S. Const, Amend. V. It is firmly established that these protections extend to noncitizens present in the United States. See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 693 (2001) ("[T]he Due Process Clause applies to all 'persons' within the United States, including [non-citizens], whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent."); Wong Wing v. U.S., 163 U.S. 228, 238 (1896) ("It must be concluded that all persons within the territory of the United States are entitled to the protection guaranteed by [the Fifth Amendment], and that even [non-citizens] shall not ... be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.").

53. Courts analyze procedural due process claims in two steps: the first asks whether there exists a protected liberty interest under the Due Process Clause, and the second examines the procedures necessary to ensure any deprivation of that protected liberty interest complies with the Constitution. See Kentucky Dep't of Corrections v. Thompson, 490 U.S. 454, 460 (1989).

54. Under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b) and 8 C.F.R. 242.2(c), the DHS has authority to revoke a noncitizen's bond or parole "at any time," even if that individual has previously been released. The BIA has placed the following limitation on this authority: "where a previous bond determination has been made by an immigration judge, no change should be made by [the DHS] absent a change of circumstance." Matter of Sugay, 17 I. & N. Dec. 637, 640 (BIA 1981). However, "the government's discretion to incarcerate non-citizens is always constrained by the requirements of due process." Hernandez v. Sessions, 872 F.3d 976, 981 (9th Cir. 2017).

55. Release from custody creates a protected liberty interest and an implied promise that the person will not be re-detained unless they fail to meet release conditions. See Morrissey v. Brewer, 408 U.S. 471 (1972), Gagnon v. Scarpelli, 411 U.S. 778 (1973). Courts have also found that the context of civil immigration detention creates an arguably greater protected liberty interest than that of parolees in a criminal setting. Ortega v. Bonnar, et al., 415 F. Supp 3d 963 (N.D. Cal. 2019), citing Morrisey, 408 U.S. at 487. Prior release from custody further reflects a determination by the Government that the noncitizen is not a danger to the community or a flight risk. Saravia v. Sessions, 905 F.3d 1137 (9th Cir. 2018).

56. Petitioner here was previously released from ICE custody after being detained upon arrival to the United States in August 2019. Since that time, Petitioner has no new arrests or criminal convictions, and there is no other indication that he failed to comply with his terms of release. Indeed, the Immigration Judge dismissed his removal proceedings in July 2025. ICE's decision to re-detain Petitioner in March 2026 did not include any new facts or circumstances warranting Petitioner's re-detention. Immigration laws have long recognized that noncitizens have an interest in an individualized hearing prior to detention in connection with immigration proceedings. See Yamataya v. Fisher, 189 U.S. 86, 101 (1903). As such, Petitioner has established that he has a protected liberty interest in his freedom from custody.

57. Having determined that Petitioner has a protected liberty interest in continued release having been released previously, the court proceeds to determine the procedures necessary to ensure any deprivation of that protected liberty interest accords with the Constitution. To make that determination, the court applies the test established in Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319 (1976). The Mathews test considers three factors: (1) the private interest affected; (2) the risk of an erroneous deprivation; and (3) the government's interest. 424 U.S. at 335.

58. Considering the first Mathews factor, Petitioner has a private interest in remaining free from detention, as discussed above. Petitioner was released from custody for over six years prior to being re-detained. Petitioner's prior release from custody creates a powerful interest for him in his continued liberty. See Morrissey v. Brewer, 408 U.S. 471 (1972), Gagnon v. Scarpelli, 411 U.S. 778 (1973). Further, courts have held that the first

Mathews factor is strongly satisfied where a petitioner is "locked up in jail" and "[can] not maintain employment or see his family or friends or others outside normal visiting hours." Velasco Lopez v. Decker, 978 F.3d 842, 851 (2d Cir. 2020). Thus, this factor favors finding Petitioner's private interest has been affected by his detention.

59. The second Mathews factor, the risk of erroneous deprivation to petitioner, also weighs in his favor. "The risk of an erroneous deprivation [of liberty] is high" when "[the petitioner] has not received any bond or custody redetermination hearing." A.E. v. Andrews, No. 25-cv-00107-KES-SKO, 2025 WL 1424382, at *5 (E.D. Cal. May 16, 2025). Civil immigration detention is "nonpunitive in purpose and effect" and is justified when a noncitizen presents as a danger to the community or risk of flight. Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690; Padilla v. U.S. Immigr. & Customs Enf't, 704 F. Supp. 3d 1163, 1172 (W.D. Wash. 2023).

60. In the instant case, DHS filed additional charges of inadmissibility weeks after re-detaining Petitioner. These new charges included inadmissibility as an alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or paroled pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i). This additional charge of inadmissibility allows DHS to make the argument that Petitioner is subject to mandatory detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) and thus not provide him with a bond hearing. Courts have found that the risk of erroneous deprivation of rights is high when a petitioner is held without an individualized hearing. Alfonzo-Mujiuca V. Thompson, Case No. SA-26-CA-00457-XR (W.D. Tx. Mar. 13, 2026), Lopez Reyes v. Wamsley, Case No. 2:25-cv-01868-JLR (W.D. Wash. Oct. 15, 2025). "The fundamental requirement of due process is the opportunity to be heard at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner." Mathews 424 U.S. at 333. Thus, "the probable value of additional procedural safeguards" including a bond hearing—which should have occurred before his re-detention—is high. A.E., 2025 WL 1424382, at *5.

61. As for the third Mathews factor, while the government has an interest in the steady enforcement of its immigration laws, the government's interest in re-detaining Petitioner without any procedural protections is substantially "low." Ortega v. Bonnar, 415 F. Supp. 3d 963, 970 (N.D. Cal. 2019); Doe v. Becerra, 787 F. Supp. 3d 1083, 1094 (E.D. Calif. 2025). Custody hearings in immigration court are routine and impose a "minimal" cost on the government. Doe, 787 F. Supp. 3d at 1094. "If the government wishes to re-arrest [petitioner] at any point, it has the power to take steps toward doing so; but its interest in doing so without [any procedural protections] is low." Ortega, 415 F. Supp. 3d at 970. Here, DHS has not provided any interest in re-detaining Petitioner based on danger, flight risk, or obstruction of removal. An individualized analysis of procedural due process ensures that the purpose of detention is not punitive. Alfonzo-Mujiuca at 23. Courts have also held that denial of a bond request under Matter of Yajure Hurtado with no alternative mechanism for an individual custody is not minimal due process, but "zero process," and that the position that no process is required cannot be reconciled with the Fifth Amendment. Ayala Suarez v. Arnott, et. al., Case No. 6:26-CV-03169-MDH (W. D. Miss., Apr. 9, 2026).

62. On balance, the Mathews factors favoring Petitioner show due process required that he be released from custody.

63. Prior release from custody reflects a determination by the government that the noncitizen is not a danger to the community or a flight risk. Saravia for A.H. v. Sessions, 905 F.3d 1137 (9th Cir. 2018). Prior release from custody also creates a protected liberty interest and an implied promise that re-detention will not occur unless release conditions are not met. Morrissey v. Brewer, 408 U.S. 471 (1972), Gagnon v. Scarpelli, 411 US 778 (1973).

64. "Freedom from imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty that [Due Process] Clause protects." Zadvydas 533 U.S. at 690. Respondents have not complied with constitutional requirements before stripping Petitioner's freedom from imprisonment, thus violating the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment.

CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

COUNT I

Violation of the INA

65. Petitioner incorporates by reference the allegations of fact set forth in the preceding paragraphs.

66. The mandatory detention provision at 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) does not apply to all noncitizens residing in the United States who are subject to the grounds of inadmissibility. As relevant here, it does not apply to those who previously entered the country and have been residing in the United States prior to being apprehended and placed in removal proceedings by Respondents. Such noncitizens are detained under § 1226(a), unless they are subject to § 1225(b)(1), § 1226(c), or § 1231.

67. The application of § 1225(b)(2) to Petitioner unlawfully mandates his continued detention and violates the INA.

COUNT II

Violation of Due Process

68. Petitioner repeats, re-alleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

69. The government may not deprive a person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. U.S. Const. amend. V. "Freedom from imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty that the Clause protects." Zadvydas at 690.

70. Petitioner has a fundamental interest in liberty and being free from official restraint.

71. The government's re-detention of Petitioner without a bond redetermination hearing to determine whether he is a flight risk or danger to others violates his right to due process.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that this Court grant the following relief:

a. Assume jurisdiction over this matter;

b. Order that Petitioner shall not be transferred outside the District of Arizona while this habeas petition is pending;

c. Issue an Order to Show Cause ordering Respondents to show cause why this Petition should not be granted within three days;

d. Issue a Writ of Habeas Corpus requiring that Respondents immediately release Petitioner;

e. Declare that Petitioner's detention is unlawful;

f. Award Petitioner attorney's fees and costs and grant any other and further relief that this Court deems just and proper.
